The webinar link will be sent to your email address before the event.

The event will be the follow up of the webinars on 31 January, 2023, 13 July, 2023 and 12 October, 2023 where practitioners shared best practices on how trends of hatred could be countered through dialogue, how dialogue could be used for settling conflicts despite huge divides in the values and views and what are the benefits and disadvantages of dialogue in daily policy making and in multilateral affairs.

The participants of the webinars were also provided the opportunity to exchange views on the initiative to establish the “Alliance for Dialogue” which will make efforts for institutionalization of dialogue in decision making procedures at both multilateral and national levels.

In the course of the next piece of the webinar series, senior governmental officials will share their views on how dialogue could support the decisions in multilateral organizations to sustainably address global challenges and respond to risks of mass atrocity crimes.

The participants will again be offered the possibility to make input to the initiative on the “Alliance for Dialogue” and institutionalization of dialogue.
